Expressing Thanks

How to gratefully progress in your career development over the holiday

The countdown to stuffing has begun. Whether you're spending the Thanksgiving holiday in Texas or Taiwan, don't forget to thank those who have been there for you in your career journey.

During this time of gratitude, you'll likely be asked many hard questions over lunch or dinner:

"What are you doing after college?"
"What are you learning?"
"Do you have a summer internship?"

These are valuable opportunities to share with your family and friends the growth you've experienced at Rice, while also practicing skills that will help you in your career journey.

Here are a few things to think about this week:

1. Reach out within your network of family and friends
2. Practice your pitch with the people who know you most
3. Ask questions and conduct informational interviews

Thank you, student workers!

You've probably seen them sitting at the front desk, helping with after-hours info sessions, facilitating drop-ins, and more. The CCD appreciates all of the Owls who work in Huff House.

Your work allows us to help students find and make their place in the world, and we are so grateful for you!

Externship Update

If you applied to the Owl Edge Externship Program and got matched to an opportunity, you should have gotten notification this weekend!

If you did not get matched or were unable to apply, don't worry! There are still opportunities available. Stay tuned for communication about additional opportunities in the next couple of weeks. Also, make sure you're following the CCD on social media (links below) for all the latest updates.
